Hermel Wilson and son Weininger Irwin attended the Council's inaugural Caribbean Tea Party on 3 October

OVER 300 older people attended Hackney's inaugural Caribbean Tea Party on 3 October to celebrate the achievements of the Windrush generation. Attendees were served traditional afternoon tea with a Caribbean twist, including salt fish patties, sweet breads, Jamaican toto cake and rum punch. Guests were entertained by steel pans, poetry readings, live music, and a sing-a-long session to old favourites. Hermal Wilson, 76, who came to Hackney from Jamaica in 1961, aged 18, said: "Some young people aren't interested in learning about heritage because it's the old days, but I think it's important to learn where you come from." See pages 4-5 for more info.

Young people from across the borough are campaigning to form the next Hackney Youth Parliament. Voting closes on 16 October

CAMPAIGNING is getting under way as young people from across the borough put in their bid to form the next Hackney Youth Parliament.

This year 23 candidates are standing for election. Their priorities include giving young people a voice, feminism, housing, disability awareness and community safety.

Over the past two years the current Youth Parliament members have created a short film on sexual health, coordinated a mental health campaign and travelled to Strasbourg, France, for the European Youth Event.

The new candidates are eager to continue their good work, and influence positive change for young people in the borough.

In the lead up to the elections there were two hustings events at Forest Road and The Edge youth hubs. Candidates were able to express their priorities and present their manifestos in more depth to a live audience. Skye Fitzgerald-

McShane, 17, member of Hackney Youth Parliament for four years and chair at the hustings event, said: "I've done two hustings events myself so it's really exciting to be on the other side, chairing this one and see the new generation of Hackney Parliamentarians take to the stage. They are all so smart!"

Pauline Adams, Head of Service Young Hackney, added: "Good luck to everyone putting themselves forward for election this year. It's great to see so many young people eager to help improve life in the borough for their peers."

Voting closes on 16 October. A copy of the manifesto booklet will be available alongside ballot boxes in all secondary schools and youth hubs across the borough.

Celebrate National Libraries Week with free events in Hackney

LIBRARIES across Hackney are set to celebrate National Libraries Week with a season of events focusing on wellbeing.

The week-long programme, from 8 to 13 October, aims to highlight the best that UK libraries have to offer. This year Hackney's libraries will showcase how they bring communities together, combat loneliness, provide a space for reading and creativity and support people with their mental health and wellbeing.

The libraries are offering a variety of free events and workshops for families and adults – from a 'knit and natter' session at Hackney Central Library to a wellbeing workshop for families at Dalston CLR James Library.

For more information about the free events in Hackney's libraries, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/libraries-whats-on

Dalston Eastern Curve's annual Pumpkin Lantern Festival is set to take place from 21 to 26 October

DALSTON Eastern Curve Garden is calling on residents to donate a giant pumpkin for its annual festival.

The Pumpkin Lantern Festival at the garden has become the stuff of local legend, not least because of the enormous pumpkins grown and donated by resident John James.

This year, however, disaster has struck. John's patch is bare, leading Dalston Eastern Curve Garden to put out a pumpkin plea.

Marie Murray, who

“Our Pumpkin Lantern Show gets better every year, with hundreds of amazing lanterns carved by residents” organises the show, said: “Our Pumpkin Lantern Show gets better every year, with hundreds of amazing lanterns carved by residents. Last year one of John's giant pumpkins was transformed into a magical Cinderella coach and the second one became the Dalston Curve Garden itself.

“Have any Hackney

Today readers grown a giant pumpkin or know of anyone who might have one or two to donate for this year's show?”

Whether or not their fairy godmother materialises, the show will go on. Hundreds of pumpkin lanterns will be lit in Dalston Eastern Curve Garden every night from 21 to 26 October.

Free pumpkin carving sessions take place on 20 and 21 October, supported by the garden's team of volunteers. This year, the first lighting up will take place from 6-8pm on 21 October. This session is suited to children and young people. A second light up will take place from 8-10pm.

News in brief

Polling district review launched

THE Council has launched a review of polling districts and stations in Hackney. The review is designed to see if the polling districts in the borough are arranged to suit the needs of voters, and to ensure that polling stations fulfil a number of criteria in order to be suitable for elections. This includes location, facilities for staff, and accessibility for disabled voters.

For more information, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/polling-districts-review

To share your suggestions write to: Electoral Services, Room 40, Hackney Town Hall, Mare Street, E8 1EA.

TfL ticket office closures

A PUBLIC consultation has been launched on plans to close ticket offices at 51 London Overground stations.

Under the proposals by operator Arriva, all stations in Hackney would be affected.

London Travelwatch, the official independent watchdog for London, wants to hear the views of Overground users.

It will then submit a response representing these to Arriva. To find out more and respond to the consultation, which closes on 11 October, visit: is.gd/DzROcf

Nobu's Christmas competition

NOBU Hotel, in Shoreditch, is looking for local artists to enter their 'A Nobu Christmas' competition with a festive design that captures the energy of Hackney.

The winning design will be placed in the hotel's windows on Willow Street, with the artist also invited to a launch party event.

The winner will also be treated to a night's stay for two, including an Omakase dinner and breakfast, and a free Nobu spa treatment.

To enter, email your 10metre wide x 4metre high design idea to: epinna@nobuhotels.com by 22 October.

The Tower Theatre Company opens new home in Stoke Newington

ONE of London's busiest non-professional theatre companies has finally opened a new fringe theatre in Stoke Newington, after a decade and half without a home.

The Tower Theatre Company, who lost their old premises in Islington after 50 years in residence, purchased a property on Northwold Road that had previously been used as a women's only gym.

Renovation work was undertaken by volunteers with the support of professional builders and the building now houses a fully equipped theatre, complete with rehearsal rooms, box office, wardrobe and props storage and social spaces for audience and members.

Leader of the building committee, Sarah Ambrose, said: “This well-loved Stoke Newington landmark is being given a new lease of life and we hope that it will become a real community asset. We're so excited to continue producing quality shows.”

“To Kill a Mockingbird”, which opens on 24 October, is the company's second play to be staged at the new theatre.

The Council hosted a Caribbean Tea Party to celebrate Hackney's Windrush generation

What a swell party!

Photos: Adam Holt

A SING-A-LONG to 'Swing Low', chats with old friends and rum punch all round. Hackney's Caribbean Tea Party was a chance to celebrate the achievements of the Windrush generation.

The tea party was organised by the Council – as part of its Black History Season of events – to thank the Windrush generation for their contributions to the borough.

Over 300 older people attended the event at Hackney Town Hall on 3 October, and were welcomed by a steel pan rendition of 'London is The Place for Me' by Nostalgia – the only traditional 'pan-around-neck' band in the UK.

Guests were directed to the Assembly Rooms, which was decorated with the flags of Caribbean islands where the Windrush generation originally came from. Art exhibits, including a replica of the HMT Empire Windrush ship, were on display alongside original suitcases used by those travelling to the UK.

Traditional Caribbean cakes – such as sweet potato pudding, rum cake and sweet bread – were served. The menu also included patties, fish cakes and ackee and saltfish vol-au-vents.

Former Hackney councillor and cultural historian, Patrick Vernon OBE, who has spearheaded the Windrush campaign, spoke about the national significance of Hackney's Windrush generation.

Hackney-born BBC Radio London presenter Eddie Nestor MBE compered part of the afternoon and shared his experiences as a Windrush descendant, while legendary drummer Jah Bunny and his band entertained the crowd.

The line-up also featured various senior groups, including East London

'The first thing that caught my attention was the chimney. I told my mum, have the house caught fire?'

KEITH McIntosh, 59, who arrived aged 11 from Saint Vincent and the Grenadines, said: "I arrived in February and it was very cold, and I was trying to figure what the smoke was coming out of my mouth!"

NGOMA Silver Bishop, 63, who arrived in 1963 aged eight from Barbados, said: "One of my most prominent memories is getting involved in a campaign for a public inquiry into the death of Colin Roach at Stoke Newington police station."

PEGGY McKenzie, 68, who arrived in 1962 aged eight from Jamaica, said: "At first I didn't like it here as a young girl. The first thing that got my attention was all the smoke coming from the chimneys, I told my mum what is it, have the house caught fire?"

LLOYD Robinson, 79, arrived in 1958, aged 17 from Jamaica, said: "I like Hackney because it's a place you can go to anywhere from. When I was young in Hackney I liked to go to house parties, I had a really nice time when I was young."

There were 802 passengers from the Caribbean on board the HMT Empire Windrush when it reached London in 1948

DID YOU KNOW?

The Windrush generation were the special guests at the Caribbean Tea Party, which included speeches, entertainment and food, as well as art and history exhibits courtesy of photography organisation Autograph, Hackney Museum, Hackney Libraries, Hackney Archives and Reel Rebel Radio

Dance's Leap of Faith, a professional dance company for older people, and the Caribbean elders' group Uprising Community Club.

This was followed by an open mic segment for the guests to share a memory, song, or poem. The music was turned up and played classic songs such as 'Stick By Me' and 'Could You Be Loved'.

Sherlene Barker, 73, who arrived aged 18 from Barbados, said: "Hearing the records brought tears to my eyes. Back then, we communicated through music and it brought back so many memories."

"Those moments you thought you forgot, it was all brought to the forefront and you face the life that you passed."

That was so touching, and today Britain is a better place for most."

A Polaroid booth was also set up to document the day. Led by artist Aida Sylvestri, the project collated an archive of photographs of the Windrush generation. BBC London Radio and Voluntary Arts England also broadcast live interviews with tea party guests in both the Town Hall and outside, on the BBC bus.

"The records brought tears to my eyes. We communicated through music and it brought back so many memories"

Older people's organisation, Connect Hackney, launched a special 'Windrush at 70' edition of its magazine, featuring information on the contributions made by Windrush migrants and their descendants.

Former Hackney councillor Patrick Vernon OBE on his role in creating Windrush Day

TEN years ago I made a documentary about Hackney resident Eddie Martin Noble, the Jamaican-born RAF man who inspired Andrea Levy's award-winning novel, 'Small Island'. It was also the Windrush's 60th anniversary, but there was no major TV coverage, no public exhibitions or events. I wrote an article making a case for a national holiday celebrating Windrush and the migrant contribution to this country. I was then approached by organisations and faith leaders and we began to lobby Government. Despite our hard work, nothing happened. Then, the Windrush scandal erupted. The public was given a picture, for the first time, of why the Windrush generation had come to this country, and what their contribution had been. So when we launched another petition the Government announced it would establish a national day of public recognition. I still feel like it's only a half victory. But I'm proud to be from Hackney, where the Council and the public are so supportive of the idea. Hackney has committed to having its own Windrush Day every year, and to celebrate other migration history.

Bend

Like the good girl you will always try to be.

Less

Is more. ....

Reduce your smile,

Subtract your laugh

Deduct your starlit afro to fit.

Fit into the place they need you to be.

Squeeze into the mould, the box, the expectation.

Girl bend like a willow tree

Sway in the wind, but never stand tall. Know your place.

Be easily categorised.

Bullsh*t.

Blossom in your light,

Highlight the world

You were meant to be here right now,

Meant to be you.

Shine!

Don't fit the mould – You are the mould!

Maximise your body

Accentuate your style

Free your afro, your hair, in any shape or form.

Add your belly laugh from way down.

Highlight your majestic history; born of kings and Queens.

You are the ray of sunshine

You are the mould

You were born for THIS world.

Don't you dare bend.

You are not a damn tree...

Even at seven I knew that the only reason Mum had asked me to go with her was because she felt bad because Dad had gone missing again – this time for weeks, he'd always wait until the swelling and bruising had gone until he returned so this time I knew we wasn't going to see him in a while.

I was treasuring every moment with Mum until she said that she was 'popping' to Ridley Road "Me jus ah go stup deh fi get some meat from Jimmys". This was a blatant LIE! Mum never just stopped in the market for one thing. We'd spend hours there before she even bought one item.

Ridley Reunion (as my sister and I named it when we were older) was where everyone from the Caribbean did their shopping on a Saturday; they'd congregate in clusters in Jimmy's meat shop talking about 'back home', the price of food and gas, and how 'Hin-Glan' was cold.

The power of words

Read extracts from the Hackney Black Women Writers Group and hear them perform at Hackney Museum's Roots, Rhythms and Rhymes event on 18 October

By Dee Creative

WITH the lack of female representation in historical and community stories, the Hackney Black Women Writers Group is a welcomed initiative.

Originally created to offer a space to black women with a connection to Hackney, the group has had interest from women all over London. It is inter-generational and inclusive, and made up of women with a diverse range of backgrounds, skills, experiences and needs.

The group has been meeting at Hackney Museum since its inception in March and, over the past six months, has been working together to build a programme that nurtures aspiring and professional black female writers.

Black women have always been a voice of quietened but strong resistance, and following in the footsteps of creative women who have come together, the group has created a safe and supportive space for black women to meet, build networks and explore ways to tell their stories.

“ Black women have always been a voice of quietened but strong resistance ”

Black women have so much to say about our experiences, our hopes and our dreams. We are a part of our communities and wider society but our voices have been excluded from history and the rare times we are heard, our stories are often marginalised into silence.

Over the next year, the group hopes to create an anthology of work to ensure our stories are integrated into the history of Hackney and beyond.

The group wants to connect with the local community, and is currently working with students from BSix Sixth Form College, including Amun Ahmed – who is already a young, published author, and features in this article.

The next big milestone will be at 'Roots, Rhythm and Rhymes' at Hackney Museum, where we will be performing works for the first time to the public. It's a scary thought: standing up in front of an audience and reading out your inner most thoughts to strangers, but it's part of the growth process to become comfortable with sharing our stories publicly and together, we believe these stories can raise a generation and change the world.

Extract from 'Loving The Brothers', by Pamela R Haynes Patti

I just about caught the 17:10 train from Camden Overground to Stratford Station. Given that the Wednesday rush hour period was in full effect, I was prepared to stand all the way to Westfield, until a young brother motioned to me to sit down in his seat. I didn't argue as my feet were killing me from wearing heels at the office all day. "Thank you," I said with a smile and hurried awkwardly to trade places with him. He stood over me smiling back; and, oh what a smile! All of a sudden, I felt myself blush or was it a hot flush? Difficult to tell at my age; either way, I had to tell myself to calm down. Beads of sweat suddenly formed on my brow as I frantically looked through my huge messenger bag for my fan. All the time this brother was observing me as if I was his entertainment.

'Trapped in A Box', by OutBox poet Stephrefresh

I feel trapped in a box a small glass box
With multiple locks.
Each lock signifying the things I got spilling out of my life.
Personified from the days when I was Talking to wise.
I wasn't using my eyes instead I was exhumed by ignorance.
Until I found myself multiplee locked in a small glass box and now...
I just don't know anymore!
All I know is I have so much to live for...
I need to free of the box...
By any means necessary!

There's an evolution within the Feminine Black.
A shift in perspective, she no longer sees herself in a position of lack.
Goddess of darkness and light striving to achieve.
She's strengthening her mental and emotional capacity, revelling in her awakened journey.
Black and Feminine, determined to win, not for money or fame but enlightenment which comes from within.
There's a revolution taking place in her heart, the realisation that self love, must be the start.
Through her conscious volition, although not always easy, she will travel to where she needs to be.
Mutual symbiosis of the heart and soul is her ancestral destiny.

Love architecture? Vote for your favourite building or public space in the People's Choice category as part of this year's Hackney Design Awards

PEOPLE in Hackney who love good aesthetics and architecture are being encouraged to vote for their favourite new building or public space as part of the eighth biennial Hackney Design Awards.

Forty-two schemes originally entered the prestigious awards, which have now been whittled down to 15 by a panel of experts. The group took design, functionality and contribution to the surrounding area into account.

The 15 shortlisted entries will be assessed in visits by an architect panel later this month, who will decide on overall Design Award winners. Residents will also be able to vote for their favourite entry in the People's Choice category of the awards.

Kim Wright, Hackney Council Group Director, Neighbourhoods and Housing, said: "The standard of entrants to this year's Hackney Design Awards gives just a flavour of the quality of design in Hackney and celebrates the contribution that this makes to the fabric of our borough. We're proud to use this platform to showcase the best new buildings and spaces of the past two years.

"I'd urge everyone to get voting in the People's Choice category, which gives everyone in the borough the chance to have their say on the new buildings and spaces that have inspired them too."

The entries range from extensions, studio spaces and outdoor spaces to a brand new hotel.

Since the Hackney Design Awards launched 14 years ago, they have helped to celebrate cutting-edge design and architecture across the borough.

Previous winners, including Bateman's Row by Theis and Khan Architects, and Barrett's Grove by Groupwork and Amin Taha, have gone on to be shortlisted for the RIBA Stirling Prize.

Voting for the People's Choice category closes on 8 November.

ALARGE painting leans against the wall in Annie Gammon's new office, ready to be hung. Its beautiful, vivid colours depict St Mary's Church, which Annie would, until recently, see each day from work, as headteacher of Stoke Newington School.

It looks like a commission from an established artist, but no – "It was a leaving gift painted by a pupil", says Annie, with a proud smile.

That smile appears on Annie's face whenever she talks about the young people she's worked with throughout her 30-year teaching career, a decade of which was spent at the helm of Stoke Newington School, N16.

"It did feel quite strange, not welcoming the children back to school this year," she admits. "But I'm so excited to be starting this role – it's such a great opportunity to play a part helping to make our schools even better."

Teaching wasn't Annie's original career path. She grew up in Sussex and studied maths at Oxford University before embarking on a career in IT in London.

After a few years, she decided to study for a PGCE at Manchester University. "I wanted to do something worthwhile, something that would make a difference, and teaching really does that," she says.

"I remember at some point when I was a teenager, realising that not everyone gets the same opportunities and access to education.

"Ever since then, my driving force has been making sure that all children, whatever their circumstances, deserve and should get the best possible education. I realise there are sometimes barriers to that, and overcoming them is something I relished as a head and something I hope I can tackle in my new role."

Annie got her first job as a maths teacher at Forest Gate Community School in Newham and made east London her home.

She's lived in Bow for 25 years, with husband Gavin, where they brought up their two children, who are both now studying at university.

Throughout her career she has worked across north and east London, taking posts in Newham, Enfield and Tower Hamlets, before joining Stoke Newington School in 2008.

"Schools aren't just about teaching the curriculum, and some of the most rewarding moments in teaching don't come from exam results," she says.

"My favourite thing about being head at Stoke Newington was seeing children go from Years 7 to 13, watching them flourish, whether they have found their school journey smooth or if they've had heard and to support schools through these challenging times.

"We're continuing to develop our plans for the Hackney Schools Group, which we hope will give schools a greater say in how school improvement works, as well as enabling greater collaboration and support between schools.

"We're still working on the proposals, but it's a very exciting programme, and one that I'm looking forward to discussing further with schools and parents. I also want to focus on how we prepare young people for adult life.

"School is about much more than the curriculum, and I want children to enjoy school too.

"That's one of the great challenges in teaching – finding something that each individual child is passionate about. I think it's really important that we continue to consider vocational courses and apprenticeships.

"University can be great, but it's not for everyone, and it's important that young people have access to careers advice that helps them to make the best decision for them."

Outside of work, Annie is a keen runner and is a member of Victoria Park Harriers.

She is also a trustee of Safaplace, a mental health charity based in Stoke Newington, which was set up following the tragic deaths of two local young people.

She says: "It's a special project that means a lot to all of us who are involved.

"We provide programmes such as peer listening, mental health first aid, and other initiatives to help young people look after their mental health, which is so important."

“There's a strong sense of ambition, and we're well above the national average. Our teachers do a brilliant job” any difficult times along the way.

"Likewise, seeing teachers and support staff develop, and playing a hand in that is very rewarding.

"As Director of Education, my role is different. It's about helping to shape the future of our family of schools, about ensuring we have the services in place to support our pupils, teachers and families to be part of a very strong education system.

"I'm lucky – Hackney's schools and settings are excellent and there's a real 'can do' attitude in both our schools and the Council.

"There's a strong sense of ambition, and we're well above the national averages. Our teachers do a brilliant job and I am keen that we, and our educational settings, make sure they get great professional development."

However, Annie warns, schools still face challenges around funding and for special needs provision.

She continues: "These are issues facing councils across the country, and we're doing what we can to make Hackney's voice

SIXTEEN streets and estates across Hackney were transformed into Play Streets to celebrate Car Free Day last month.

Despite the rainy weather children from across the borough joined friends and neighbours to have races, play games and ride bikes, using special play packs provided by the Council to mark the day.

Car Free Day, on 22 September, was organised by the Council and Hackney Play Association, which also coordinates the Council's ongoing Play Streets programme, giving children a chance to reclaim their streets from traffic and take part in fun and games with their neighbours.

Roman, five, who was out enjoying a Play Street on Car Free Day, said: "It feels fun to play in the street and in the rain because I like racing in the rain and having a skidding race.

“It was fun to be able to run all over and up and down the street in the rain”

"I've been racing, putting cones out, rolling hoops, playing barriers and dressing up as a policeman."

Since the Council issued its first Play Street Order in 2012, where a road is temporarily closed and handed over to residents for a few hours, over 40 streets across the borough have taken part.

Rose Skudder, five, said: "It was fun to be able to run all over and up and down the street in the rain."

"I met my neighbour Elsa who is older and goes to a different school to me!"

Her mum, Kelly Hood, added: "I love the Play Street scheme, it really brings the residents of our street together. It means such a lot to children to be able to play freely on the street without having to worry about traffic."

Joshua, 14, agreed. He said: "There's nowhere for anyone to get hit by cars so we can have fun playing in the street. I've been racing on the bikes, playing hoops and helping the little children to cycle."

Kim Wright, Hackney Council Group Director, Neighbourhoods and Housing, added: "We are proud to have introduced Play Streets to London back in 2012, and now have over 40 operating in the borough."

"This World Car Free Day, we partnered with Hackney Play Association to run over a dozen Play Streets simultaneously across Hackney, showcasing their transformative power to reclaim streets for play and promote walking, cycling and better air quality."

"I'm glad everyone had so much fun on the day, despite the rain!"

News in brief

Group seeks fruit pickers

VOLUNTEERS from Feedback are turning neglected fruit into healthy snacks by harvesting from Hackney trees and distributing to the borough's primary schools and charities. "Feedback is a Hackney-based campaign group working towards a fairer and more sustainable food system," explains Ren Piercy, the project's Gleaning and Urban Harvest Coordinator. "Our urban harvesting project aims to collect fruit from Hackney gardens that would otherwise have gone uneaten."

Once volunteers have picked the fruit, it is then distributed across Hackney-based charities, community projects and primary schools including FoodCycle, London Fields Primary School, Princess May Primary School and Dalston Eastern Curve Garden.

Feedback is now looking for local people who have fruit growing in their gardens that they do not want, or are unable to harvest themselves. They are also looking for more volunteers to harvest the fruit.

For more information, visit: www.feedbackglobal.org/urban-harvest; email: londonharvest@feedbackglobal.org; or call: 020 3051 8633.

Plastics ditched in Refill Day

THE Council joined over 20 local businesses in signing up to offer free tap water refills in a bid to help residents ditch plastic bottles.

The Refill London action plan aims to reduce the number of plastic bottles used by the public by encouraging people to take out reusable bottles and fill them up when they are out and about.

Eleven volunteers took to the streets to explain the benefits to businesses of signing up to the pledge to offer free water refills, as part of the first ever National Refill Day, on 27 September.

Volunteer Lucy Simler said: "It's really important to get people to use fewer bottles – this refill scheme makes it a lot easier for people, and will help us all reduce waste." Businesses who commit to refill were added to an app and given a sticker to display in their window. The Council is working with Refill London, a City to Sea and Thames Water collaboration, to promote the scheme in the borough.

Businesses looking to get involved can download the app at: www.refill.org.uk/get-the-refill-app and add their refill site. Alternatively they can email: london@refill.org.uk

Hoxton Harvest Ceilidh

13 October, 11am-5pm, Geffrye Museum, 136 Kingsland Rd, E2 8EA

THE Geffrye Museum may have closed for refurbishment, but its gardens remain reeling and two-stepping with life.

On 13 October, it will be hosting a free Hoxton Harvest Ceilidh to celebrate autumn. New to Ceilidh? Not a problem. London folk band Fiddle Paradiddle will be providing the live tunes, craft cider will be on sale to steady your nerves and hot toasties from the Cheese Truck will be your reward.

Still not convinced enough to don your dancing shoes? Outdoor games are being organised too, while workshops will teach you how to create seasonal headdresses, bunting and wreaths. All free, all ages welcome, and all warmed by a bonfire.

THE ABSTRACT SHOW

Until 13 Oct, various opening times

The exhibition brings together a group of abstract artists who all explore form, pattern, colour and texture in their work. Whilst their love for the abstraction unites them, their unique vision and techniques set them apart. Free. All ages. Well Hung gallery, 239 Hoxton Street, N1 5LG.. Info: 020 7033 2777; www.wellhung.co.uk/exhibitions/the-abstract-show/

BOUND

Until 20 Oct, Wed-Sat, 12noon-6pm

Bound presents the work of four artists who became MA graduates in 2017 from four London-based art colleges. This exhibition also marks

PEER's third year of partnership with Acme, offering young artists the chance to exhibit at an acclaimed gallery. This year's graduates include work by three artists for whom painting forms a central part of their practice and an artist who works across performance and sound. Free. All ages. Peer, 97-99 Hoxton Street, N1 6QL. Info: 020 7739 8080; info@peeruk.org; www.peeruk.org/acme-bound/

HERE IS A STRANGE AND BITTER CROP

Until 24 Nov, Mon-Fri 10am-5pm

The exhibition presents a new body of work by Morocco-born artist, Soufiane Ababri. The month-long residency brings together histories that confront homophobia and racism. Ababri assembles a narrative where power, sex and sport converge in order to closely examine violence, domination and control within display and representation. Free. All ages. Space HQ, 129-131 Mare Street, London Fields, E8 3RH. Info: 020 8525 4330; www.spacestudios.org.uk/exhibition-programme/soufiane-ababri/

PHOTOMONTH

Until 30 Nov, various times

The annual East London-wide exhibition celebrates photography in all its shapes, sizes and styles. In honour of the 100th anniversary of women gaining the right to vote, this year's theme is 'Women in the 21st Century'. Each year, they put out an open call for submissions. The result is photos by emerging artists being hung beside internationally renowned photographers. The public are even invited to vote for 'The best in Show' image. Free. All ages. The Print Space, E2; Rich Mix, E1; and Hackney Museum, E8. Info: 020 8800 6665; www.photomonth.org/

THE MOVING MOMENT WHEN I WENT TO THE UNIVERSE

Until 21 Dec, Tues-Sat, 10am-6pm

This exhibition features new paintings, painted bronze pumpkin and flower sculptures and a large-scale Infinity Mirrored Room created for Yayoi Kusama's 12th exhibition at the gallery. Continuing to address the twin themes of cosmic infinity and personal obsession, the new works in this exhibition are testament to an artist at the height of her powers as she approaches her 90th birthday. Free entry, timed ticket only. Victoria Miro, 16 Wharf Road, Hoxton, N1 7RW. Info: 020 7336 8109; www.victoria-miro.com/exhibitions/528/

Cassette Store Day

13 October, Various locations

IF YOU were about to chuck that old box of dusty cassette tapes from the 80s, think again. They could be your ticket to hipsterdom.

Sales of cassettes have soared by 35 per cent this year, up from 30 per cent in 2017. They even have their own day, the aptly named Cassette Store Day, and it's about to come your way.

On 13 October, shops across the world are set to participate in the celebration of this retro format by stocking special, limited edition cassettes. This year's exclusive releases are from bands including Barfoot and Lola Disco.

Here in Hackney, Clapton's Lion Coffee Records has signed up, while the Shacklewell Arms will be hosting a free all-day festival, including a performance from a band called Average Sex. Bet that's piqued your curiosity.

Fiesta Del Magia: Magic Roundabout's Winter Programme

12 Oct-1 Jan 2019, Old Street roundabout, EC1Y 1BE

OLD Street's Magic Roundabout is going out with a bang, and a bodega.

Located right in the middle of the Old Street roundabout, and accessed via a secret staircase in the tube station, the Magic Roundabout has been a staple of the East London scene since 2015.

It is now set to close, but not before reinventing itself as Fiesta Del Magia, a little Latin American hamlet complete with town square, chapel, bodega and fiestas every night. From 12 October, you can confess your sins beside the chapel's stained glass and shrines, sink a cocktail at Frida's bar or dance the night away in the bodega. You have till 1 January, 2019, so... Arriba! Arriba!

Schools stars awards

A BRILLIANT teacher, an amazing school cook or an inspirational teaching assistant? Hackney Schools Stars is back for a second year running.

The Council is asking parents, guardians, school governors or students – who would just like to say thank you – to nominate their school star.

Annie Gammon, Director of Education and head of Hackney Learning Trust, said: “Due to the success of and the response to last year’s Hackney School Stars we have decided to bring it back for a second year.

“The Council and

Hackney Learning Trust want to celebrate our amazing staff and school staff. Our parents, guardians and children know who these shining stars are in our schools, as they interact with them on a daily basis.

“Please take the time and nominate your school heroes who tirelessly work to achieve great results or deliver special care to you or your children, whatever or however that may be.

Schools Stars categories

Teacher of the Year:

For all teaching staff

Hackney Schools Star:

For all non-teaching schools support workers who are delivering a service within a school

Lifetime Achievement Award:

For teaching and non-teaching staff who have worked in Hackney for more than 15 years

“We provide some of the best schools in the country and teachers, therapists, admin staff, cooks and cleaners, to name but a few, have made this happen. They deserve to be thanked for what they do by you.”

People can nominate for their school heroes in three categories: Teacher of the Year, Hackney Schools Star, and Lifetime Achievement Award. Nominations are open from 10 October to 7 December.

News in brief

Medical bursary at Mossbourne

A MEDICAL bursary programme run by Mossbourne Sixth Form, E5, is helping pupils to secure a place to read medicine at university.

The sixth form has achieved some of the UK’s highest A-level results and seen students go on to study competitive healthcare subjects at world class universities. The scheme, now in its second year, aims to give students the same opportunities as those available to pupils in private school and has been carefully crafted to ensure students are nurtured in preparation for medical school. Following last year’s pilot programme, 18 students have joined the programme this year. One of the first students on the initial programme was 17-year-old Sandra Karakas.

She said: “I have had the chance to do a week of work experience at Homerton hospital and also work in a makeshift hospital in a slum in India.”

The Mossbourne Sixth Form open morning takes place on 17 November. Reserve your tickets at: www.mca.mossbourne.org

Free event for women wanting to get into STEM careers

HACKNEY women working in science, technology, engineering and maths (STEM) are being celebrated to mark Ada Lovelace Day. She was an English mathematician and writer, best known for her work on Charles Babbage’s proposed mechanical computer. The day seeks to increase the profile and recognise the achievements of women in STEM careers.

As part of the celebrations Here East, in Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, is hosting a free Monster Confidence and Stemettes event for young women hoping to get into STEM careers on 16 October. Students can gain interview practice, get involved in career workshops and listen to motivational talks by women in the industry.

The Council is also encouraging more women to work in STEM roles, after its largest IT apprenticeship intake ever during the summer.

Hannah Hecheverria, traffic engineer technician apprentice, said: “I don’t think any job should be stereotypical of any gender and I would say regardless of what gender you are, do what your drawn to and you’re passionate about.”

For more info on Monster Confidence, and to register, visit: monsterconfidence.co.uk

Women working in STEM can also be nominated for a 100 Hackney Women at: www.hackney.gov.uk/hackney-women

Stormont House School pupils rock Twitter

YEAR 8 students from Stormont House School, E5, have been inspired to paint and hide rocks as part of a trend happening across the UK.

The idea is parents and children are encouraged to embrace their creative sides and explore the great outdoors, while finding and hiding the painted rocks.

The Stormont House pupils hand-painted over 30 rocks before hiding them in Hackney Downs. The rocks have been branded with the words ‘Stormont Rocks Twitter.’

Pupil Callum Da Costa said: “We hope that people will take a photograph of the rocks and then post it on Twitter. We want people to re-hide them again for other people to find. We wrote ‘hide me, find me’ on a few as a hint!”

Residents who find a hidden painted rock should take a photo of it and use the hashtags #stormonthouse #StormontRocks on Twitter to post the image.

YOUNG men from across east London attended an inspirational careers event at Young Hackney's Forest Road Youth Hub, E8, earlier this month.

Over 50 young people from local secondary schools – including City Academy Hackney, Stoke Newington School, Hackney New School, Skinners' Academy and Swanlea School – attended the Inspiring Young Men event on 2 October.

The day saw 17 local professional men and entrepreneurs, of all ages and from a range of backgrounds, sharing their stories and offering informal career advice on their field of expertise in a bid to motivate and galvanise young men.

Guest speakers included company director Richard Blackburn, who set up his own multimillion pound recruitment company, despite leaving school with only a few GCSEs.

He was joined by firefighter Ben Fox, entrepreneur Matt Lo and social responsibility manager for ELBA charity, Reg Amoah.

Matt, founder and CEO of health and fitness company Outrivals, said: "It's good for young people to know there are different options in life, and to feel that they can be open minded when thinking about their future."

"I hope young people can learn today that you will get far with a good work ethic, and that you shouldn't be afraid to dream, as dreams can take you a long way."

Audience members took part in discussion groups to talk informally with the speakers.

Firefighter Ben Fox, a former London Fire Service Cadet, had worked in other professions before deciding to join the service.

He said: "Though you may start with one job, there are no straight career paths in life. So even if you are unsure, you may start in one place but it can lead you to somewhere you love."

The speakers gave valuable insights into their chosen career paths, talking about their real life experiences, successes and failures, which all helped them grow and achieve.

Young people discussed their dreams and aspirations and saw how volunteering and hobbies could be key to getting the future careers they want.

The groups also talked about the importance of first impressions, what employers are looking for, and even practised firm handshakes and strong eye contact.

Mahin Ahmed, a Year 9 pupil from Swanlea School, said: "It's been great hearing from people who choose different paths for their careers."

Juliet Alexander, careers and enterprise manager at Stoke Newington School, added: "It was a great opportunity for our boys to meet such inspirational men and hear about their journeys."

"I think it helped to motivate them to do better in their studies. It was wonderful the way these busy professionals took time out to enthuse and inform our students, many of whom do not have strong male role models. Congratulations to the entire team, we will be back next year."

Pauline Adams, Head of the Council's Young Hackney service, said: "Events like this give young people the opportunity not only to network with professionals, but to think more widely about what they can achieve in their futures and feel inspired."

"I would like to thank all those who volunteered their time and expertise on the day."

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018. Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall.

To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Clare Potter.

Time to stop smoking

RESIDENTS are being encouraged to go smoke-free for 28 days as part of the Stoptober campaign launched this month.

Hackney's smoke-free service, which is funded by the Council and provided by Whittington Health NHS Trust, supports people living, working or studying in the borough to quit tobacco for good.

The launch follows a pledge last month by health leaders from City and Hackney CCG, Homerton hospital, East London Foundation Trust, and City and Hackney GP Confederation to go smoke free (see box).

The Stoptober campaign is based on research showing that people who quit for 28 days are five times more likely to stop for good.

Nearly 30 per cent of adults in Hackney smoke, which is higher than both the national and London averages.

Around 20 per cent of all deaths in Hackney are caused by smoking, meaning that, at present, between 200 and 300 people a year could die prematurely.

Anyone wanting to quit smoking, or take the Stoptober challenge, can contact the smoke-free Hackney service, which offers different types of support across the borough.

MORE INFO

For more information about Stoptober and the smoke-free Hackney service, visit: www.smokefreehackney.org; call 0800 0469946; or email: r.loton@nhs.net

Hackney's smoke-free pledge

NHS organisations in the borough have pledged not only to prevent smoking on their sites, but to help everyone who passes through their doors to quit.

Last year, Homerton hospital announced a total smoking ban on its premises. Now, local health leaders have gone further, signing a pledge that further commits them to help staff, visitors and patients to stop smoking.

Representatives from City and Hackney CCG, Homerton hospital, East London NHS Foundation Trust, and City and Hackney GP Confederation met at St Leonard's Hospital in Hoxton last month to sign the NHS smoke-free pledge.

News in brief

Raise awareness of arthritis with 5k fun run

ACTOR and director Judd Batchelor (pictured) who suffers from arthritis, has organised a 5k fun run at Hackney Downs in order to raise money for arthritis, cancer and sickle cell charities.

Called 'Audition for Life', the fun run includes a workout led by a professional fitness instructor, and will be followed by a 'Cool Down Party' at Empire 2, where talks from the NHS Give Blood team will be interspersed with performances by local artists.

'Audition for Life' takes place on 13 October. Tickets cost £25. For more information, and to book your place, visit: info@ba-theatre.com; or call: 07906 261 827.

Your views on carers' services

THERE is still time to complete a questionnaire as part of a consultation looking at carers' services in Hackney. The Council is keen to hear from adult carers or residents who regularly provide help and assistance to someone else such as a member of the family, a friend or neighbour. People are being asked to share their experiences and views on accessing services the Council provides to support them.

To take part, complete the questionnaire online: www.hackney.gov.uk/carers before 15 October and be entered into a prize draw to win a £50 Love2shop voucher. To get a hard copy of the questionnaire, or to order it in another format or language, call: 020 8356 4711; or email: userengagement@hackney.gov.uk

Event explores black LGBTQI+ mental wellbeing

A PIONEERING arts event exploring mental wellbeing among black lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, queer, intersex+ (LGBTQI+) communities is set to take place at Hackney House on 10 October.

Hosted by Brixton Reel Film Festival to coincide with World Mental Health Day, the 'Too Black Too Queer East' event will raise awareness of the need for mental health support for black LGBTQI+ communities.

Cary Rajinder Sawhney, Brixton Reel Film Festival director, said: "We use film and arts to pioneer awareness of mental wellbeing amongst some of the UK's most excluded minority communities.

"This year we are delighted to be hosting 'Too Black Too Queer' in Hackney and together with Thrive LDN we're able to take this free entry festival more widely across the capital.

"The aim is to target a greater diversity of residents and bring a much needed understanding of mental health and wellbeing to people who may experience economic or social exclusion."

City and Hackney CCG and the Council are supporting the event.

'Too Black Too Queer

East' is produced in association with club nights The Batty Mama and Urban World, and supported by Thrive LDN Culture and Hackney Pride 365.

The event starts from 7.30pm. For more information, or to book free tickets, visit: bit.ly/2RmN3QQ

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge.

A frittata is an egg-based Italian dish similar to an omelette or crustless quiche. It is versatile and can be eaten for breakfast, lunch or dinner. It also keeps well in the fridge to eat cold the next day.

You can make up your own flavour combinations including your favourite vegetables, herbs, spices or cheese. In the simple version below we are using red onion, kale and feta, however you could swap the kale for courgette and cherry tomatoes (like the picture), or add any vegetables that need cooking in your fridge.

Red onion, kale and feta frittata

Makes 2-3 portions

Preparation time
10 mins

Cooking time
20 mins

Ingredients

- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 1 red onion
- 1-2 cloves of garlic
- 100g of kale
- Chilli flakes (optional)
- ½ tsp of spices such as cumin seeds, fennel seeds (optional)
- 6 eggs
- 100g of feta cheese or 60g mature cheddar
- Generous grind of black pepper
- Pinch of salt thick stalks from the middle)

- Add the olive oil and red onion to a frying pan that is also suitable to go under the grill, and slowly cook the onions on a medium heat for 5 minutes
- Add the shredded kale, garlic, chilli flakes and spices (if using) to the frying pan and cook for another 5 minutes. Keep the heat quite low so nothing burns
- In a bowl/jug whisk the eggs together with the pepper and salt. Crumble, grate or chop the cheese into small pieces
- Heat the grill to medium
- When the kale in the pan is soft, pour in the egg mixture and sprinkle the cheese on. Give the pan a quick stir and make sure all the ingredients are spread out evenly. Then do not stir again
- Continue to cook on a low heat on the hob for a further 3 minutes. Then put the whole frying pan under the preheated grill. This will cook the top. Keep an eye on it and remove when it has turned golden brown (about 3-5 minutes). Serve and enjoy!

Method

- Chop the onion in half and peel, then slice into thick half-moons.
- Peel and crush the garlic
- Finely shred the kale (remove the

Make Hackney a greener borough – how do you travel to work?

THE Council would like to find out how residents who work in Hackney travel to work as part of a borough-wide survey to encourage greener travel.

The information from this survey will help the Council understand how people commute and what would encourage them to walk and cycle more or reduce their reliance on a car.

Businesses in Shoreditch can also apply for grants of up to £2,000 towards sustainable transport or facilities from the Zero Emissions Network.

For example, previous grants have been used to buy electric vehicle charging points, pool bikes, cycle parking, cycle maintenance, transport maps and shower and changing facilities.

In order to apply for the grant, businesses will need at least 30 per cent of their employees to respond.

Residents who work in Hackney can also take the survey to be in with the chance of winning two cash prizes of £100.

The survey has been extended and now closes on 14 October. To take part, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk

READERS who have been following Hackney Archives' project to digitise thousands of negatives taken by Clapton's RA Gibson's studio will know that many of the images feature parties of one kind or another.

There are tens of thousands of wedding photographs, as well as bar mitzvahs, work parties and a host of other community celebrations.

One of the lovely things about Ron Gibson's work is that he also took the time to record the people working 'behind the scenes' at these events: the cloakroom staff, the chauffeurs and the bar tenders.

The photographs featured here capture some great little scenes such as the men wearing wedding guests' top hats, the cloakroom attendant snatching some reading time between customers and the bride and her father being sheltered from the rain.

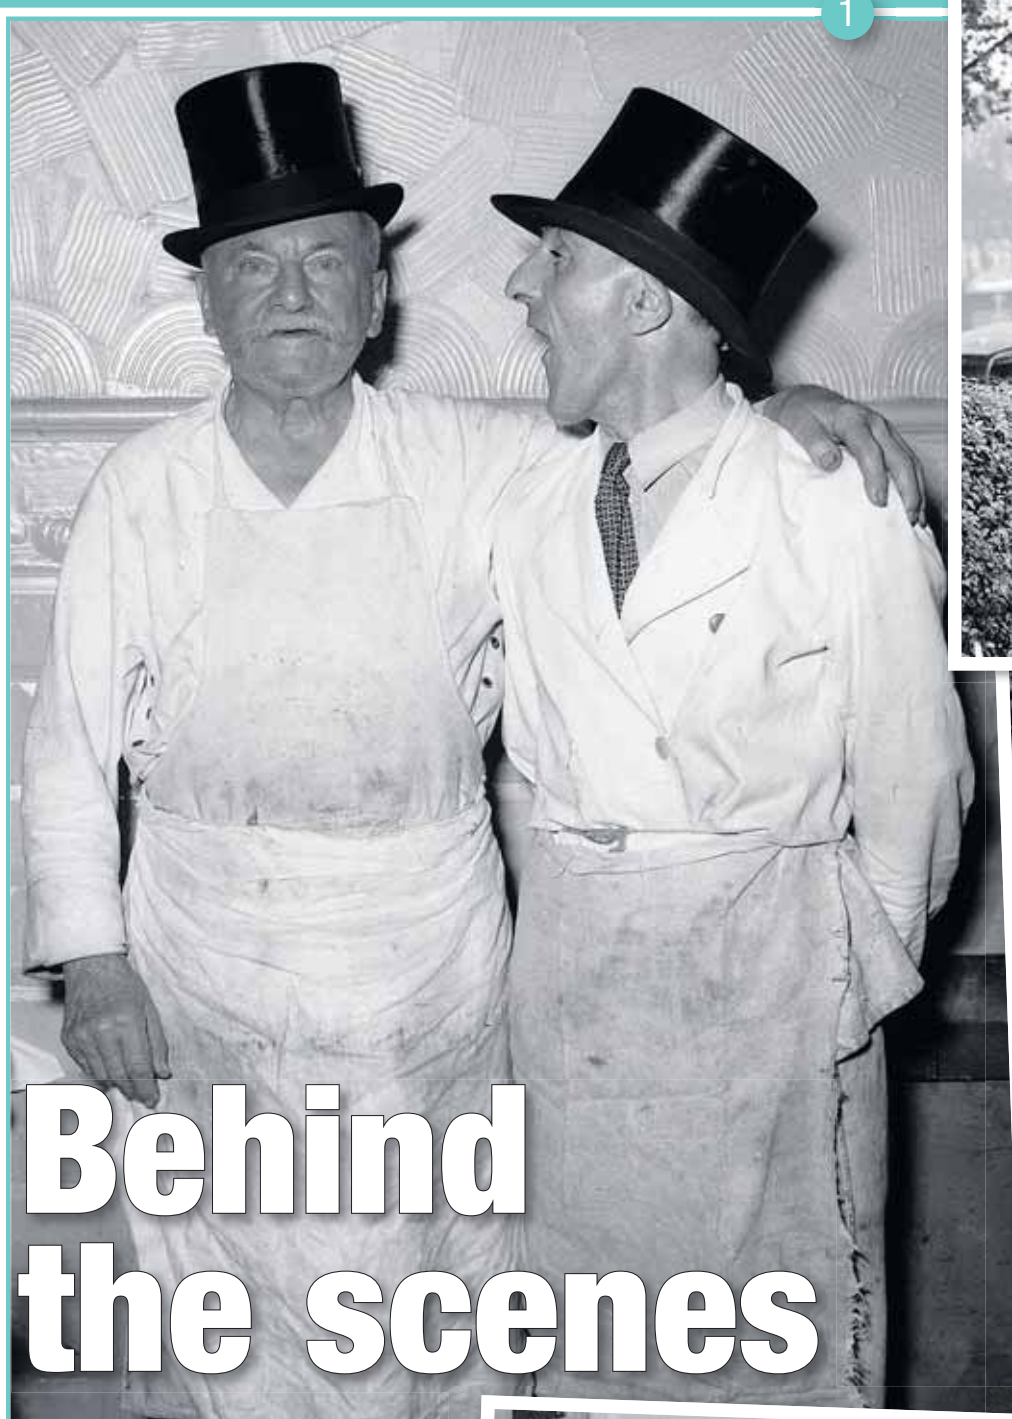

Hackney Archives, based in Dalston, is carrying out a two-year project to digitise images from Gibson's studio so that they can be shared with local people at events around the borough and online.

A key part of the project involves interviewing people who appear in the photographs so that their stories can be preserved as part of the history of Hackney.

More photos from RA Gibson's studio are on display at Hackney Museum and online: flickr.com/photos/hackney\_archives

MORE INFO

 Hackney Archives will be featuring photographs from the Gibson collection in each edition of Hackney Today. If you recognise anyone in the photos, call: 020 8356 8925; or email: archives@hackney.gov.uk
